INFRASTRUCTURE SECURITY

SECURITY RISKS: ENERGY IN CANADA

Expert Holistic Insight

Protest and activism activity in the energy sector is difficult to predict and can occur without warning.

Actions relating to environmental extremism, or targeting high profile infrastructure projects, is a subject area that we continually monitor. Observations include changes to worker safety risk levels, broadened threat scenarios, 'differently' motivated adversaries and 'disruption'/'obstruction' tactics. Increasingly sophisticated and organized, these groups utilize social media and information technology skillfully in pursuit of their objectives.

The optimal solution to energy sector security is a Security Risk Management Program that is planned, customized, and robust.

Lions Gate Risk Management is here to protect energy sector and oil and gas industry clients with a full suite of security services. Comprised of a diverse group of professionals drawn from multiple sectors, we evaluate energy security risks from a wide variety of perspectives. We are a problem-solving team with critical thinking abilities working to address the specific needs of your organization and industry.

In recognition of all threat scenarios and to better facilitate incident avoidance or management, we provide thorough operational, risk-based assessments, proactive security operations, planning scenarios, and measured security resource support numbers. We work seamlessly with our Strategic Decision Support team for open intelligence and expert analysis to provide threat and risk guidance so your teams can confidently and safely make decisions. We provide a real time and risk proportionate foundation for mitigating risks and responding to security incidents.

We will help protect your brand, reputation and projects, bringing our in-depth communications, insight and experience within the sector to help you navigate the sometimes-choppy waters of community engagement or dissent.

We keep your brand, reputation and projects safe.

Lions Gate will guide you, so you meet mandatory compliance requirements and achieve security performance levels to deliver a return on investment.

- DOUG MAYNARD, PRESIDENT AND CEO

We are here to protect you and your energy operations by ensuring your security provision is reasonable and prudent, appropriate, realistic and risk commensurate. Listed below, the skills and services we offer are all interdependent and collectively can be developed into an organizational security risk management program, much like existing emergency response programs. With our support, your project teams will develop the confidence required to address similar issues should they arise while conducting their daily work activities.
